THE POLICY FOR 1884.

The result of the late elections in Virginia and New York, can hardly fail to enlighten the leaders of the Republican party as to the true policy to be pursued in the coming national contest. There is every reason to believe that many enthusiastic Republicans, doubting success in New York have been inclined to take the Presidency AFTER all New York is the Empire upon the capture of one or more of the State-first in population, first in Southern States by the use of federal wealth, first in commerce, first in man-patronage and fusion with discontented

BY MADGE WILDER,

VIII. A farewell day was quietly given at the Herford mansion (only known to George Herford) in honor to the departure of young Herford. One, a privileged guest, remained after all others had gone. The leaves were gently rusting. The wayside flowers had matter every week raised their drooping heads, and their petals were opening to the breeze with which came their fragrance. The littie birds were hopping about in the hedges, or seeking the cool shades along the bordering forests.

Along a woodland pathway were walking two persons. Maggie Warner had her hands clasped about Herford's arm and FOR THOSE SUBSCRIBING NOW. was intently watching his changing expression. The little wards of the forests ceased chirping, and sat quietly, till they passed. At her urgest request, Charlie Herford was relating his adventures and trials, his ambitions and hopes.
